Developing A Beginning Teacher Induction Program:

Developing a Teacher Induction Plan Barbara L. Brock, Marilyn L. Grady, 2005-12-08 Help teachers move past the grind of daily survival to the fulfillment of career long professional development Imagine someone telling you that within three years your new teachers would leave the profession for which they trained so hard That s what is happening to 30% of today s promising new teachers who are not given the mentoring direction and professional development that is so desperately needed to keep them focused and enthusiastic To handle this growing challenge of teacher attrition teacher induction experts Barbara L Brock and Marilyn L Grady offer a comprehensive program crafted with school leaders and staff developers in mind which provides strategies both for supporting beginning teachers and for retaining and developing these promising highly qualified teachers Written in an accessible workbook style format this guide covers Designing a multiyear developmental program including the orientation process mentoring directed activities seminars and workshops The responsibilities of the induction team Assessment of current issues including attrition and past retention efforts Program evaluation from initial assessment to the sharing of results When beginning teachers receive the support they need not only do they truly contribute to their schools but they also set out to do what they chose to do prepare today s students for tomorrow s world

Evaluating the Impact of the Beginning Teacher Induction Program on the Retention Rate of Beginning Teachers Adriane Lenette Watkins Mingo, Gardner-Webb University. School of Education, 2012 This dissertation examined the Beginning Teacher Induction Program of a rural school system in North Carolina The effects of mentoring induction sessions administrative support ongoing staff development and other support offered at the system level to beginning teachers were carefully analyzed The researcher used eight themes based on the objectives of the school system s Beginning Teacher Support Program improving beginning teachers skills and performance supporting teacher morale communications collegiality building a sense of professionalism and positive attitude facilitating a smooth transition into the first and second years of teaching putting theory into practice preventing teacher isolation building self reflection and retaining quality teachers All data were categorized into four primary domains personal management instructional and socialization The researcher found that mentoring need based professional development and administrative support are critical for effective induction programs Data were gathered from stakeholders through interviews focus group discussions and surveys and were analyzed for frequency of the themed responses Recommendations for further research are included based on an analysis of the data revealed in this study Disaggregation of the data in this study determined support is successful in reducing the attrition rate for beginning teachers in the school system

A New Teacher Induction Program Richard S. Allen, 1996 Teacher induction programs are fundamental to familiarizing teachers with district policies as well as fostering feelings of support and success New teachers need to know where to turn for specific information and they need to know that questions are a normal part of beginning a new position Programs and procedures that ease this transition from student to professional will make beginning teachers feel more comfortable about their new position and will elicit their best performance A collaborative teacher induction program can be an effective means of strengthening the performance of the beginning teacher The major purposes of the experience are to help beginning teachers develop security and confidence that will improve their teaching to encourage them to remain in the profession and to eliminate the isolation they might experience An accompanying benefit a planned interactive in service program for all participating staff will yield value for the inductees mentors administrators and support staff On a broader scale the experience may be viewed as an effort to improve the teaching profession by retaining the most effective teachers and ultimately to improve the quality of education in the nation s schools The result of this project will be the development of a teacher induction program through which the beginning teacher will make the transition from student teacher to effective educator a less stressful journey Author s abstract The Development of Eastern Illinois University's Beginning Teacher Induction Program Beverly J.
