Compatible Forest Management:

Compatible Forest Management Robert A. Monserud, Richard W. Haynes, Adelaide C. Johnson, 2013-04-17 Public debate has stimulated interest in finding greater compatibility among forest management regimes The debate has often portrayed management choices as tradeoffs between biophysical and socioeconomic components of ecosystems Here we focus on specific management strategies and emphasize broad goals such as biodiversity wood production and habitat conservation while maintaining other values from forestlands desired by the public We examine the following proposition Commodity production timber nontimber forest products and the other forest values biodiversity fish and wildlife habitat can be simultaneously produced from the same area in a socially acceptable manner Based on recent research in the Pacific Northwest we show there are alternatives for managing forest ecosystems that avoid the divisive arena of either or choices Much of the work discussed in this book addresses two aspects of the compatibility issue First how are various forest management practices related to an array of associated goods and services Second how do different approaches to forest management affect relatively large and complex ecosystems

Stevens, 2002 Science Update, 2002 Understanding Key Issues of Sustainable Wood Production in the Pacific Northwest, 2005 Researchers involved with the Pacific Northwest PNW Research Station Sustainable Wood Production Initiative have outlined some of the barriers and opportunities for sustainable wood production in the region Sustainable wood production is defined as the capacity of forests to produce wood products and services on a long term basis and in the context of human activity and use The collective findings of these papers suggest that in the future the regions wood supply will primarily come from private land and the barriers and opportunities related to sustainable wood production will have more to do with future markets harvest potential land use changes and sustainable forestry options than with traditional sustained yield outputs Private lands in the PNW should be able to sustain recent historical harvest levels over the next 50 years but regional changes in sawmilling capacity and uncertain market conditions may affect wood production in the region Public perceptions of forestry land use changes and alternative forestry options are also discussed These papers present preliminary findings and proposals for future work designed to help us understand the key issues related to sustainable wood production Understanding the Social Acceptability of Natural Resource Decisionmaking Processes by Using a Knowledge Base Modeling Approach Christina Kakoyannis, Bruce Shindler, and , Forest Management Arthur Bernhard Recknagel, John Bentley, Cedric Hay Guise, 1926
