

SECOND LANGUAGE ACQUISITION

Second Language Acquisition (SLA)

Definition: Second Language Acquisition (SLA) refers to both the study of individuals and groups who are learning a language after their first language (L1) and the process of learning that language. The additional language is called a second language (L2), even if it's the third, fourth, or tenth language acquired. It is also commonly referred to as a target language (TL), indicating the language aimed to be learned.

Scope of SLA:

1. Informal L2 Learning:

- o Takes place in naturalistic contexts without specialized language instruction.
- o SLA also examines how languages are learned through natural exposure and immersion, as experienced by immigrants or individuals living in a target language environment.
- o Example: A Japanese child who moves to the USA and picks up English through playing and attending school with native English-speaking children.
- o Example: An adult Guatemalan immigrant in Canada who learns English through interactions with native English speakers or coworkers who speak English as a second language.

2. Formal L2 Learning:

- o Occurs in classrooms with structured lessons.
- o Example: A high school student in England taking a French class.
- o Example: An undergraduate student in Russia taking an Arabic course.
- o Example: An attorney in Colombia taking night classes in English.

3. Combination of Formal and Informal Learning:

- o Involves both classroom instruction and real-life language use.
- o SLA studies how languages are acquired in formal educational settings, like classrooms, where learners get structured instruction and feedback.
- o Example: A high school student in England takes French classes, receiving lessons, assignments, and tests from a teacher.
- o Example: An American student taking Chinese language classes in Taipei or Beijing while also using Chinese for social interactions and daily living.
- o Example: An adult Ethiopian immigrant in Israel learning Hebrew through attending special classes and interacting with coworkers and other residents.

Creating Contexts for Second Language Acquisition Arnulfo G. Ramirez, 1995 The Study of Second Language Acquisition in the Asian Context, 2006 This book will be of special interest to English teachers and those in professional development in the region and or who have classrooms with Asian learners Paradigms appear to be shifting in Asian L2 learning in a region providing huge growth in English education This will have an important bearing on the profession including researchers worldwide A Philosophy of Second Language Acquisition Marysia Johnson, 2008-10-01 divdiv How does a person learn a second language In this provocative book Marysia Johnson proposes a new model of second language acquisition SLA a model that shifts the focus from language competence the ability to pass a language exam to language performance using language competently in real life contexts Johnson argues that current SLA theory and research is heavily biased in the direction of the cognitive and experimental scientific tradition She shows that most models of SLA are linear in nature and subscribe to the conduit metaphor of knowledge transfer the speaker encodes a message the hearer decodes the sent message Such models establish a strict demarcation between learners mental and social processes Yet the origin of second language acquisition is located not exclusively in the learner s mind but also in a dialogical interaction conducted in a variety of sociocultural and institutional settings says the author Drawing on Vygotsky s sociocultural theory and Bakhtin s literary theory she constructs an alternative framework for second language theory research teaching and testing This approach directs attention toward the investigation of dynamic and dialectical relationships between the interpersonal social plane and the intrapersonal individual plane Johnson s model shifts the focus of SLA away from a narrow emphasis on language competence toward a broader view that encompasses the interaction between language competence and performance Original and controversial A Philosophy of Second Language Acquisition offers an introduction to Vygotsky s sociocultural theory and Bakhtin s literary theory both of which support an alternative framework for second language acquisition an examination of the existing cognitive bias in SLA theory and research a radically new model of second language acquisition DIV DIV Second Language Acquisition and the Younger Learner Jenefer Philp, Rhonda Oliver, Alison Mackey, 2008-10-01 This new volume of work highlights the distinctiveness of child SLA through a collection of different types of empirical research specific to younger learners Characteristics of children s cognitive emotional and social development distinguish their experiences from those of adult L2 learners creating intriguing issues for SLA research and also raising important practical questions regarding effective pedagogical techniques for learners of different ages While child SLA is often typically thought of as simple and often enjoyable and universally effortless in other words as child s play the complex portraits of young second language learners which emerge in the 16 papers collected in this book invite the reader to reconsider the reality for many younger learners Chapters by internationally renowned authors together with reports by emerging researchers describe second and foreign language learning by children ranging from pre schoolers to
