Deep Future:

Deep Future Pablos Holman,2025-07-22 For decades the tech industry has overwhelmingly been just a software industry Silicon Valley s big win was disrupting Yellow Cab What about disrupting General Motors General Mills General Electric Energy water waste food manufacturing construction things every human on Earth relies on have made incremental progress over the last century but have not seen the kind of exponential improvements we take for granted in computing Meanwhile scientific progress continued invention kept advancing but these technologies were considered too hard by the tech geniuses preoccupied with shoving more ads into your prefrontal cortex Now is the moment when all of this changes Seismic waves signaling the tectonic shift are underfoot We call it Deep Tech the advanced technologies we will use to solve the biggest problems in the world Deep Future is about giving you the mindset the tools and the reasons for creating technology that matters

Deep Future Pablos Holman,2025-07-22 For decades the tech industry has overwhelmingly been just a software industry Silicon Valley s big win was disrupting Yellow Cab What about disrupting General Motors General Mills General Electric Deep Future is about giving you the mindset the tools and the reasons for creating technology that matters

The Long View Richard Fisher,2023-03-30 A wide ranging and thought provoking exploration of the importance of long term thinking Humans are unique in our ability to understand time able to comprehend the past and future like no other species Yet modern day technology and capitalism have supercharged our short termist tendencies and trapped us in the present at the mercy of reactive politics quarterly business targets and 24 hour news cycles It wasn t always so In medieval times craftsmen worked on cathedrals that would be unfinished in their lifetime Indigenous leaders fostered intergenerational reciprocity And in the early twentieth century writers dreamed of worlds thousands of years hence Now as we face long term challenges on an unprecedented scale how do we recapture that far sighted vision Richard Fisher takes us from the boardrooms of Japan home to some of the world s oldest businesses to European laboratories where scientists work as custodians on centuries long experiments He examines the psychological biases that discourage the long view and talks to the growing number of people from the worlds of philosophy technology science and the arts who are exploring smart ways to overcome them How can we learn to widen our perception of time and honour our obligations to the lives of those not yet born

Reading with Earth Anne Elvey,2022-08-25 Winner of the 2023 ANZATS Award for the Best Monograph by an Established Scholar Applying a re envisioned ecological feminist hermeneutics this book builds on two important responses to twentieth and twenty first century situations of ecological trauma especially the complex contexts of climate change and cross species relations first ecological feminism second ecological hermeneutics in the Earth Bible tradition By way of readings of selected biblical texts this book suggests that an ecological feminist aesthetic bringing present situation and biblical text into conversation through engagement with activism and literature principally poetry is helpful in decolonizing ethics Such an approach is both informed by and speaks back to the new materialism in ecological criticism

Inhuman

Thoughts Asher Seidel, 2008-03-25 Inhuman Thoughts is a philosophical exploration of the possibility of increasing the physiological and psychological capacities of humans to the point that they are no longer biologically psychologically or socially human. The movement is from the human through the trans human to the post human. The tone is optimistic. Seidel argues that such an evolution would be of positive value on the whole. Seidel's initial argument supports the need for a comprehensive ethical theory the success of which would parallel that of a large scale scientific revolution such as Newtonian mechanics. He elaborates the movement from the improved but still human to the post human and philosophically examines speculated examples of post human forms of life including indefinitely extended life span parallel consciousness altered perception a sociality and a sexuality. Inhuman Thoughts is directed at those interested in philosophical questions on human nature and the best life given the possibilities of that nature. Seidel's overall argument is that the most satisfactory answer to the latter question involves a transcendence of the present confines of human nature.

The Anthropocene Eva Horn, Hannes Bergthaller, 2019-09-11 The Anthropocene is a concept which challenges the foundations of humanities scholarship as it is traditionally understood. It calls not only for closer engagement with the natural sciences but also for a synthetic approach bringing together insights from the various subdisciplines in the humanities and social sciences which have addressed themselves to ecological questions in the past. This book is an introduction to and structured survey of the attempts that have been made to take the measure of the Anthropocene and explores some of the paradigmatic problems which it raises. The difficulties of an introduction to the Anthropocene lie not only in the disciplinary breadth of the subject but also in the rapid pace at which the surrounding debates have been and still are unfolding. This introduction proposes a conceptual map which however provisionally charts these ongoing discussions across a variety of scientific and humanistic disciplines. This book will be essential reading for students and researchers in the environmental humanities particularly in literary and cultural studies history philosophy and environmental studies.

Human Extinction Émile P. Torres, 2023-06-15 This volume traces the origins and evolution of the idea of human extinction from the ancient Presocratics through contemporary work on existential risks. Many leading intellectuals agree that the risk of human extinction this century may be higher than at any point in our 300 000 year history as a species. This book provides insight on the key questions that inform this discussion including when humans began to worry about their own extinction and how the debate has changed over time. It establishes a new theoretical foundation for thinking about the ethics of our extinction arguing that extinction would be very bad under most circumstances although the outcome might be on balance good. Throughout the book graphs tables and images further illustrate how human choices and attitudes about extinction have evolved in Western history. In its thorough examination of humanity's past this book also provides a starting point for understanding our future. Although accessible enough to be read by undergraduates Human Extinction contains new and thought provoking research that will benefit even established academic philosophers and historians.

Ecology and Existence Matthew C. Ally, 2017-07-20 This study explores the increasingly troubled relationship between humankind and the Earth with the help of a simple example and a complicated interlocutor. The example is a pond which it turns out is not so simple as it seems. The interlocutor is Jean Paul Sartre, novelist, playwright, biographer, philosopher, and despite his several disavowals, doyen of twentieth century existentialism. Standing with the great humanist at the edge of the pond, the author examines contemporary experience in the light of several familiar conceptual pairs: nature and culture, fact and value, reality and imagination, human and nonhuman, society and ecology, Earth and world. The theoretical challenge is to reveal the critical complementarity and experiential unity of this family of ideas. The practical task is to discern the heuristic implications of this lived unity in diversity in these times of social and ecological crisis. Interdisciplinary in its aspirations, the study draws upon recent developments in biology and ecology, complexity science, and systems theory, ecological and Marxist economics, and environmental history. Comprehensive in its engagement of Sartre's oeuvre, the study builds upon his best known existentialist writings and also his critique of colonialism, voluminous ethical writings, early studies of the imaginary, and mature dialectical philosophy. In addition to overviews of Sartre's distinctive inflections of phenomenology and dialectics and his unique theories of praxis and imagination, the study also articulates for the first time Sartre's incipient philosophical ecology. In keeping with Sartre's lifelong commitment to freedom and liberation, the study concludes with a programmatic look at the relative merits of pragmatist, prefigurative, and revolutionary activism within the burgeoning global struggle for social and ecological justice. We learn much by thinking with Sartre at the water's edge: surprising lessons about our changing humanity and how we have come to where we are; timely lessons about the shifting relation between us and the broader community of life to which we belong; difficult lessons about our brutal degradation of the planetary system upon which life depends; and auspicious lessons too about a participatory path forward as we work to preserve a habitable planet and build a livable world for all earthlings.

 Along the way Stephen Baxter looks at our place in the universe, considers the possibility that we are in fact alone, and wonders whether that fact gives us the right to inherit everything. He also looks at how we might strive to overcome the limitations of the physical universe and win the deepest future. Stephen Baxter has brought his trademark narrative flair and imaginative brilliance to the latest ideas in physics and cosmology and produced a breathtaking guide to our possible futures.
