CASE STUDY

ISSUE

1

An inadequate number of high-speed charging stations in key urban areas led to extended downtime for our EV logistics fleet.

2

Inefficient route planning for EV logistics led to increased energy consumption and reduced delivery capacity.

3

Lack of real-time tracking and management of the EV fleet hindered operational transparency and responsiveness.

IMPACT

This limitation led to a 20% decrease in delivery speed and efficiency, resulting in a noticeable dip in customer satisfaction.

The inefficient routing caused a 15% increase in energy usage and a 10% reduction in daily delivery volume.

This gap led to challenges in fleet management, including delayed responses to maintenance needs and underutilization of vehicles.

SOLUTION

Positive Charge installed advanced, rapid-charging stations at strategic urban locations, significantly reducing charging time and fleet downtime.

We implemented a dynamic route optimization software, integrating real-time traffic and vehicle charge data, thereby optimizing routes for energy efficiency and delivery speed.

We developed and integrated a comprehensive fleet management system, including real-time tracking, predictive maintenance alerts, and utilization analysis.

Biomaterials and Bioactive Molecules to Drive Differentiation in Striated Muscle Tissue Engineering Valentina Di Felice, Giancarlo Forte, Dario Coletti, 2016-05-18 Tissue engineering is an innovative multidisciplinary approach which combines bio materials cells and growth factors with the aim to obtain neo organogenesis to repair or replenish damaged tissues and organs The generation of engineered tissues and organs e g skin and bladder has entered into the clinical practice in response to the chronic lack of organ donors In particular for the skeletal and cardiac muscles the translational potential of tissue engineering approaches has clearly been shown even though the construction of this tissue lags behind others given the hierarchical highly organized architecture of striated muscles Cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death in the developed world where the yearly incidence of Acute MI AMI is approx 2 million cases in Europe Recovery from AMI and reperfusion is still less than ideal Stem cell therapy may represent a valid treatment However delivery of stem cells alone to infarcted myocardium provides no structural support while the myocardium heals and the injected stem cells do not properly integrate into the myocardium because they are not subjected to the mechanical forces that are known to drive myocardial cellular physiology On the other hand there are many clinical cases where the loss of skeletal muscle due to a traumatic injury an aggressive tumour or prolonged denervation may be cured by the regeneration of this tissue In vivo stem or progenitor cells are sheltered in a specialized microenvironment niche which regulates their survival proliferation and differentiation The goal of this research topic is to highlight the available knowledge on biomaterials and bioactive molecules or a combination of them which can be used successfully to differentiate stem or progenitor cells into beating cardiomyocytes or organized skeletal muscle in vivo Innovations compared to the on going trials may be 1 the successful delivery of stem cells using sutural scaffolds instead of intracoronary or intramuscular injections 2 protocols to use a limited number of autologous or allogeneic stem cells 3 methods to drive their differentiation by modifying the chemical physical properties of scaffolds or biomaterials incorporating small molecules i e miRNA or growth factors 4 methods to tailor the scaffolds to the elastic properties of the muscle 5 studies which suggest how to realize scaffolds that optimize tissue functional integration through the combination of the most up to date manufacturing technologies and use of bio polymers with customized degradation properties
