Impact of the Innate and Adaptive Immune System in Driving Type 1 Inflammatory Skin Disease Barbara Meier-Schiesser, Judit

Danis, Mark Mellett, 2025-02-25 Inflammatory skin diseases are frequent in number and often lead to a decreased quality of life in the affected patients. These diseases result from a complex interplay between the innate and adaptive immune systems. Type 1 inflammation is an immune response driven primarily by Th1 cells which secrete pro-inflammatory cytokines notably Interferon gamma. The initiation of Type 1 inflammation is typically triggered by the recognition of antigens associated with intracellular pathogens. Dendritic cells present these antigens to naive T cells leading to the differentiation of predominantly Th1 cells which in turn activate other immune cells including macrophages and cytotoxic T cells. In chronic inflammation the infiltration of T cells drives the perpetuating cycle of inflammation at the epidermal barrier. Th1 induced inflammation can synergize with recruitment and heightened activity of other T cell subsets such as Th17 cells. Typical type 1 inflammatory skin diseases include psoriasis, lichen planus, acne, hidradenitis suppurativa, pityriasis rubra pilaris, adverse cutaneous drug eruptions and autoimmune disorders such as vitiligo and lupus erythematoses.
