be more bored and are likely to exercise in ways you don't think about, such as digging, running, and playing. They must be kept busy learning, playing, and working. Daily exercise, both physical and mental, such as training sessions, is a must. German Shepherds are aloof and unfriendly to strangers. To a large extent, they are a puppy's dream experiences. In the beginning, with the most important first getting them used to their people and doing well teaching them basic commands. They shed heavily. In fact, their skin is the German Shepherd's brush. They must be groomed weekly and buy a good vacuum. You'll find that their training is not a walk in the park. It's important for the German Shepherd who sometimes suffers from anxiety, especially when left alone. They've got a reputation for being a great watchdog, and that's why the German Shepherd should never be chained or left alone to guard. A dog's health leads to frustration and aggression. The German Shepherd's health is not a walk in the park, but with the right access to a large fenced area, they're burning off their natural energy.
